This is a wonderful opportunity for an individual who is interested in serving on a board, is passionate about using markets to drive toward a more sustainable future, appreciates both the benefits and impacts of technology, and wants to be part of an engaged and dynamic group of Directors!

Ideal candidates will have the following qualifications:

- Expertise in the areas of procurement (public and private sector), technology trends, and/or ecolabels
- Demonstrated leadership in government, academia, non-profit community, and/or private sector
- Experience on a governance or advisory board
- Personal qualities of integrity, passion, collaboration and commitment to sustainability
- Willingness and ability to meet the responsibilities of an engaged board member
- Executive experience in cloud computing, renewable energy, data privacy, IT security, technology sector supply chains and/or MSMEs (micro, small and medium enterprises) a plus

GEC was founded more than a decade ago to manage the world's leading technology ecolabel "EPEAT". GEC has since expanded its work to encompass a broad set of tools and resources to assist public and private sector institutional purchasers globally in leveraging their purchasing power in pursuit of our mission.

The GEC Board supports GEC through governance, financial oversight and strategic guidance. Board members are elected for three-year terms, are asked to participate in four board meetings per year (of which up to two may be held in-person), and are expected to serve in at least one committee, working group or officer role. Board members promote GEC's activities through personal and professional networks, and are not expected to donate or participate in fundraising activities. Service on the GEC board is not remunerated, except for travel expenses incurred within policy guidelines.
